Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Avowals Maid. Mr Edmund Gosse. Moore. My dear Gosse, how glad I am to see you, and how well timed your visit is, you will acknowledge when I tell you that five minutes before the door opened I left my writings - you see them all scattered over the table - and came to this fire (which, by the way, isn t wanted on a day like this) to dream of - whom do you think? - of you, of course, and that two human beings so different as ourselves should have been friends for forty years. It must be nearly as long as that. Gosse. Differences in temperament draw men together. Are we not formed as notes of music are For one another though dissimilar? A late spring fire is responsible for many dreams; but I should have preferred to hear that it had set you thinking of the art that has united us, rather than of superficial differences that failed to divide us. With you it has been as with me, not a day passing these forty years without our meditating on the mystery of our art. But I will not delay. I merely came - Moore. You must not go. This visit is most opportune. I ve been trying to write this artemoon and for many previous afternoons for the last fortnight, beginning the same thing over and over again and again and starting afresh.
