It was so arranged as to show in the smallest possible compass as complete a picture of the development of the course of study as could be presented in written form. The work in all bound volumes was shown in the following sequence: 1. A typewritten monograph, or method sheet, treating of the subject illustrated in the volume. 2. The course of study in the subject in printed form. 3. The teacher's daily program. 4. Work from the pupils, showing all the written lessons given in the subject from the first lesson in September to the last lesson in June. Under this arrangement the methods followed, the course of study to be carried out, the time value of every subject, the results secured, were shown in every volume. There were ninety-two monographs, or method sheets, illustrating fully the methods followed in the different subjects taught. In all cases these monographs were written by the principals or teachers. These volumes of method sheets, illustrated as they were with the results secured from pupils, met with a generous commendation from the teachers of America.
